2 words that describe us:

QUALITY — COMPETITIVE PRICE

PROBLEMS

WINDOWS AND DOORS MARKET IN EUROPE

PROBLEM 1. PRICE

Insulated aluminium windows and doors belong to the premium category and are therefore usually much more expensive than plastic (PVC) alternatives.

Because of these high prices, they often cannot remain competitive, which makes premium quality difficult to access for many builders and customers.”

PROBLEM 2. TIME

In the premium aluminium doors and windows market, the production and delivery process often takes 8–12 weeks, which slows down projects and causes dissatisfaction among customers.

PROJECT 6339

Thermal insulated aluminium windows and doors with triple glazing were installed at the restaurant in Hungary.

The RAL7016 anthracite-grey finish gives the building a modern, elegant look, while the 48 mm glazing ensures high energy efficiency, comfort, and long-lasting durability.

PROJECT 5523

Nestled in Austria, this restaurant was reimagined with sleek aluminium windows and doors. The triple glazing keeps the lively interior warm and quiet, while the anthracite-grey frames add a touch of modern elegance—inviting guests to step into a stylish dining experience.

PROJECT 2742

The restaurant's goal was to make its outdoor spaces usable throughout the year while providing guests with a modern and elegant atmosphere. The thermal insulated aluminium pergola and the glazed entrance not only added functional expansion to the building but also gave it a strong visual character.

PROJECT 3415

At Lake Velence, the holiday resort was designed to offer guests a place of relaxation and style. Large glass surfaces open the interiors toward the natural beauty of the lake, while the anthracite-grey frames add a touch of elegance. The result is a calm, inviting atmosphere where visitors can unwind in comfort all year round.
